

PREVENT: INFORMATION, STAFF DUTY AND PROCEDURE AT RWS

Preventing radicalisation and extremism.

At Ringwood Waldorf School the staff and trustees promote inclusion and diversity throughout all aspects of the education this includes the delivering of the curriculum and the social education.

Protecting children from the risk of radicalisation is viewed as part of the school's wider safeguarding duty.

At RWS we view radicalisation as a form of harm and abuse, it is the duty of the school to protect children from this.

During the process of radicalisation it is possible to intervene to prevent vulnerable people from being subject to radicalisation.

There is no single way of identifying an individual who is likely to be subject to extremism.

Specific factors may influence and contribute towards vulnerability such as family, friends, online, social media and those with specific needs.

Vulnerable young people maybe looking for answers, they maybe looking for a sense of belonging or may have experienced exclusion, this is, however not exhaustive.

DUTY OF RWS AND ALL STAFF

1) Staff are required to follow the procedure for other safeguarding risks.

Be aware of changes in children's behaviour.

2) The school and Staff must ensure that children are safe from extremist and terrorist material when accessing the Internet. Suitable filtering must be in place.

3) Staff should use their professional judgement in identifying those who might be at risk and act appropriately, this may include making a referral to

Channel Programme
